

REVIEW OF WORLD STOCK MARKETS

Foreign stock indices are in no hurry to adjust. Major U.S. indices ended the trading session on Monday with a slight decline, but remain on the annual maximum. The desire of investors to take profits after a significant growth over the last week prevents from further growth. European markets did not show any change either. British FTSE 100 index lost only 0.26%, while Germany's DAX about 0.5%. September Brent reached $ 113.5 per barrel. Increased tension in Iran supported the oil prices.

REVIEW OF THE RUSSIAN STOCK MARKET

According to trade MICEX index rose by 0.75%. The trading on Monday was optimistic. Market participants played on the high cost of oil and positive closing of U.S. sites on Friday. No negative news from the European markets provided additional support. During the day, the index MICEX grew up more than 1.5% but before the close of trading the "bears" intensified in the background of the negative start of trading in the U.S. and the resulting increase was less than one percent.
