The Ministry of Energy has confirmed the development of new restrictions for cryptocurrency miners

The Ministry of Energy proposes to create a fourth category of energy supply reliability for miners and other consumers who do not care about uninterrupted power supply, Deputy Energy Minister Evgeniy Grabchak confirmed to Vedomosti. According to him, the ministry will finally decide by the end of 2024 which consumers will fall into the new category, after which it is expected to amend the government resolution on the rules of non-discriminatory access to energy infrastructure. He also did not rule out that the first pilot project for the fourth category could be launched this year.
