Test exchange trading of green certificates to begin in 2025 in Russia - SPIMEX

The St. Petersburg International Mercantile Exchange (SPIMEX) plans to begin training in trading green "low-carbon" certificates next year, said Sergey Trofimenko, Managing Director for Gas and Electricity Markets at the trading platform, during the conference "Priorities of the Electric Power Market in Russia". He recalled that the trading platform has already signed five agreements with the largest suppliers of generation attributes on the possibility of trading green certificates on the exchange. As part of these agreements, SPIMEX developed a trading strategy, the first version of which was presented at the beginning of the year.
