Rosseti wants to coordinate cryptocurrency mining infrastructure in the regions

As Kommersant has learned, Rosseti (MOEX: FEES) is ready to become responsible for placement of mining centres in the regions. The initiative could help to load unclaimed power grid capacities in certain regions of the Russian Federation, where the state-owned company has recorded a decrease in energy consumption. For the same purpose, Rosseti proposes to establish a special tariff for idle power supply centres. Large miners find the idea discriminatory, and analysts believe that the powers of infrastructure organizations should not go beyond the technologically necessary interaction with consumers.
