The problem of personnel shortage in electric power industry organizations is getting worse

Currently, electric power industry organizations are facing a colossal personnel shortage. According to Chairman of the All-Russian Electric Power Trade Union, Yury Ofitserov, it will get worse and in the near future may become a serious challenge for the industry. "Production is impossible without highly efficient, professionally trained specialists. It will not be possible to carry out technological processes indefinitely on enthusiasm alone. Optimization of personnel numbers in electric power industry organizations has been carried out before and has not led to anything good," said Yury Ofitserov during an Open Interview with EPR.

Igor Makovskiy assessed the progress of restoration work in regions affected by cyclones

Igor Makovskiy, General Director of Rosseti Centre's Group of Companies, summed up the preliminary results of restoration work at power grid facilities in regions affected by three waves of powerful cyclones, Quiteria and Caetano. Bad weather with heavy snowfall, squally wind, and "freezing rain" caused trees and roofing elements to fall on power lines, an excess load on power lines, broken wires, damaged poles, and temporary power outages in a number of populated areas in 17 of 20 regions where Rosseti Centre and Rosseti Centre and Volga region operate.
